Everything is in your Head, but no one is there to Respond

Prints

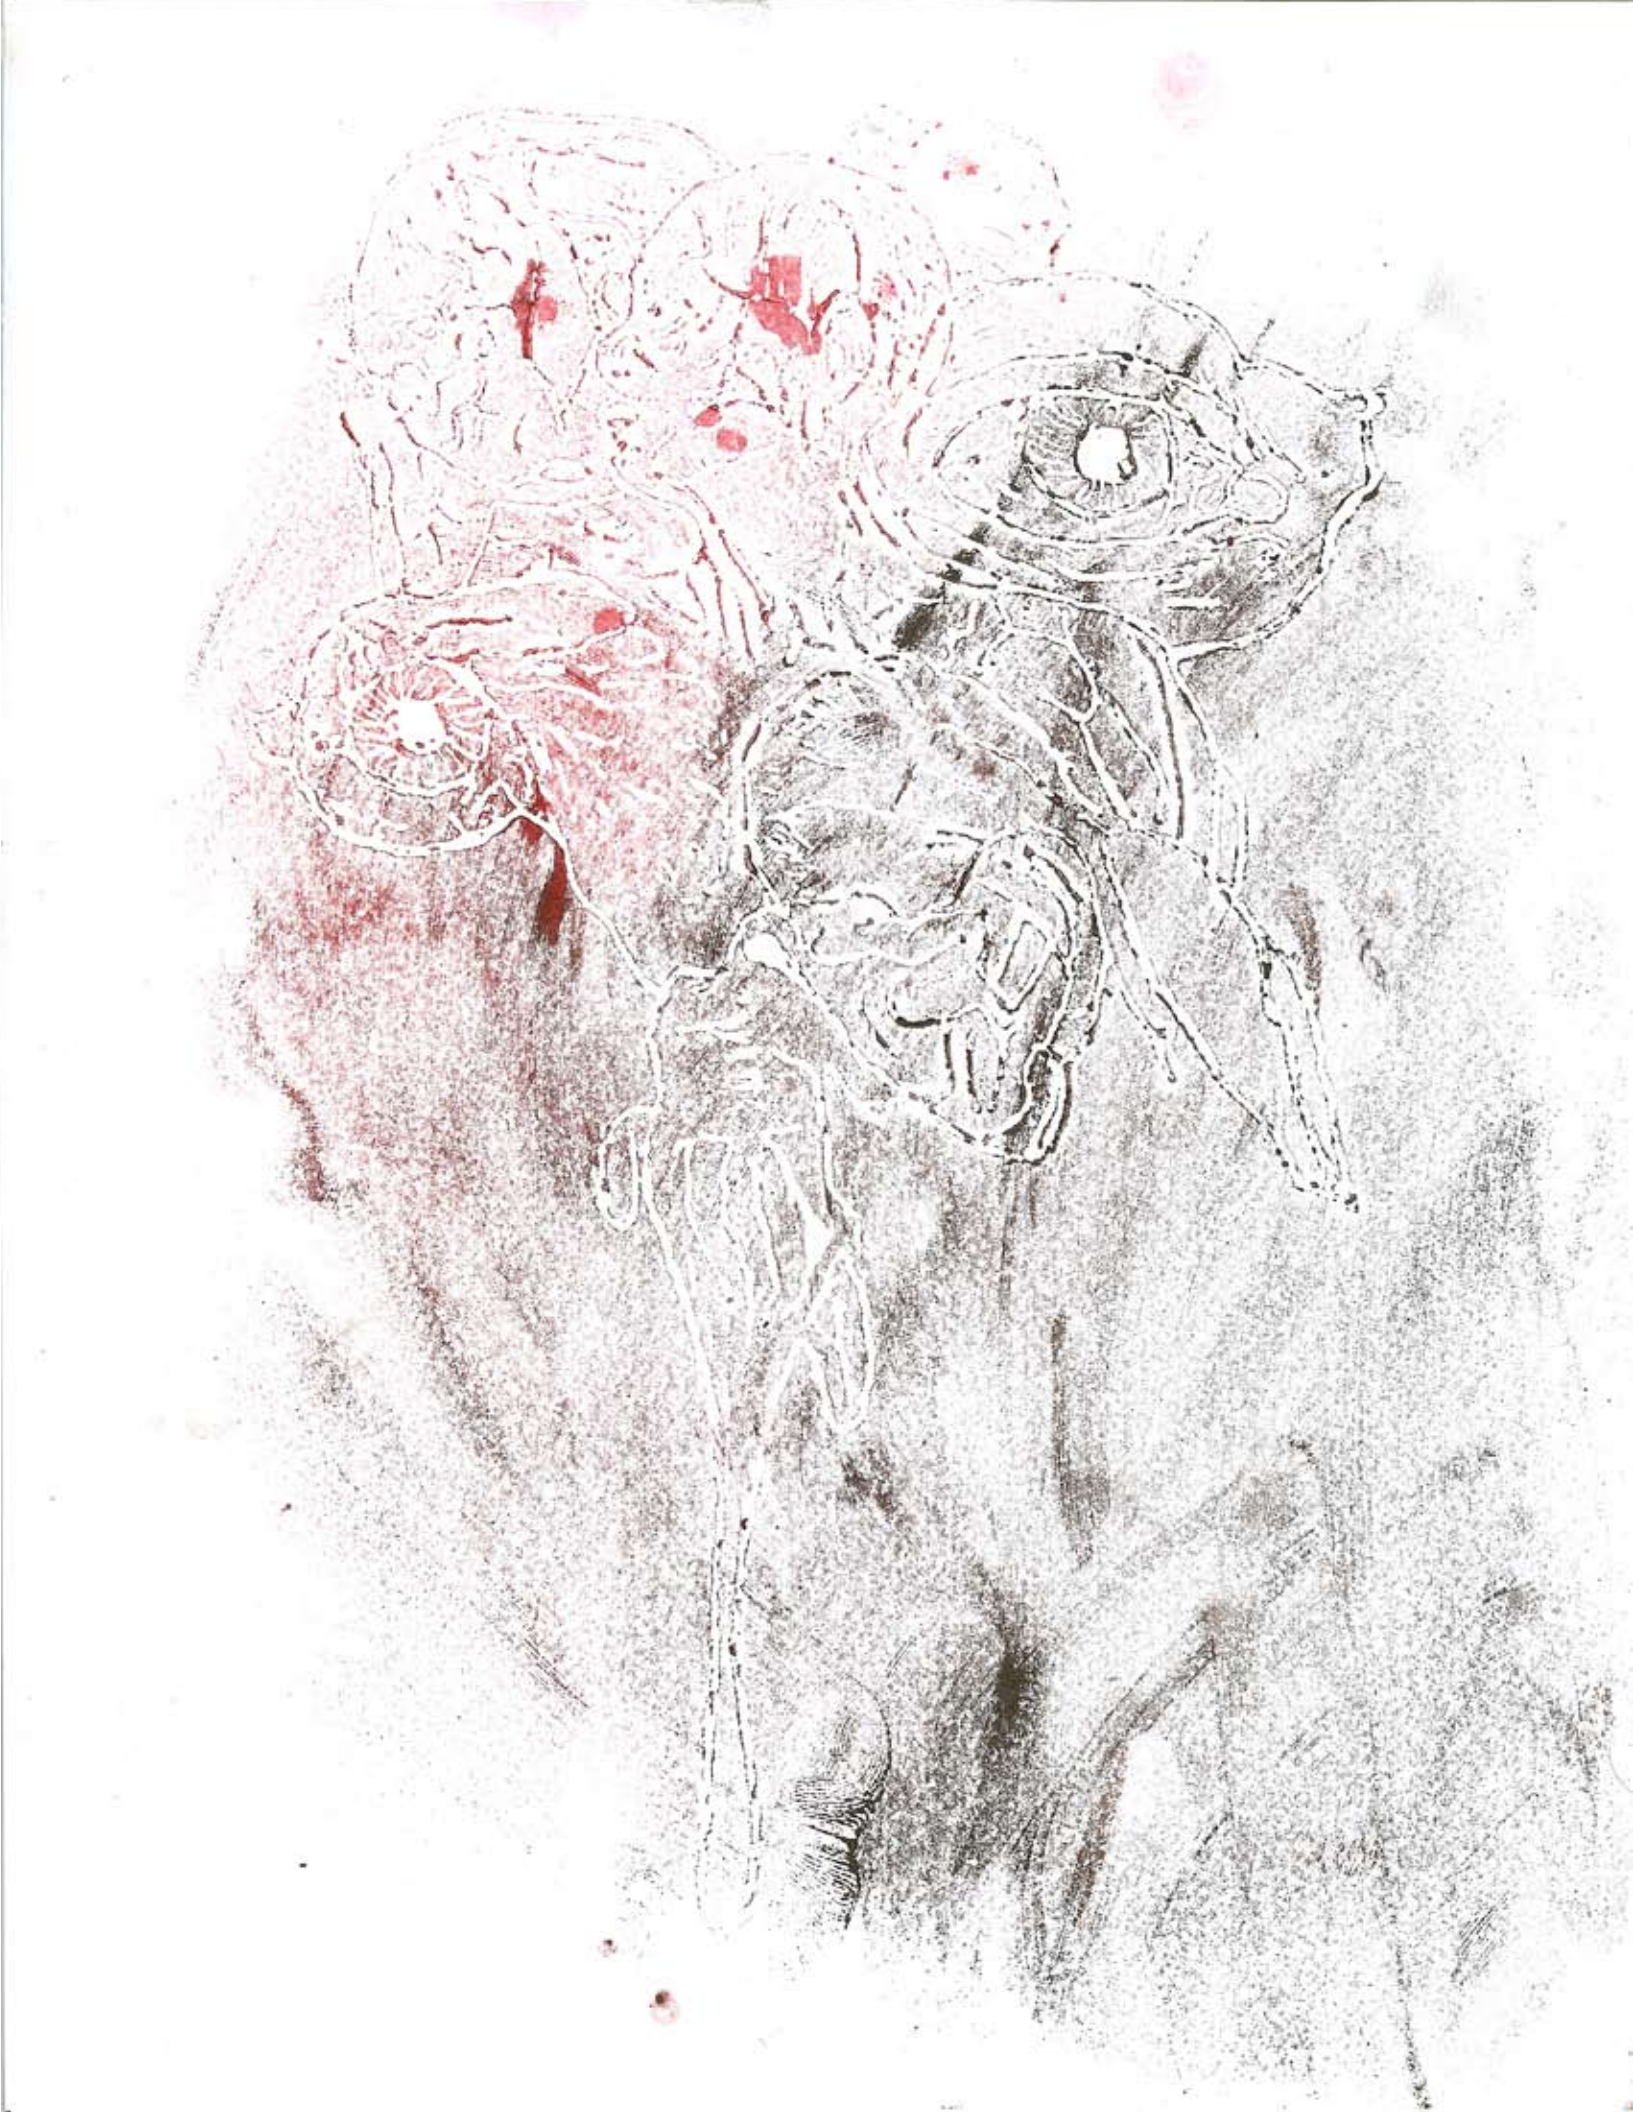

The original design was created by taking woodcuts from medical texts from the 1500's to the 1800's, and cutting them up and creating new monstrosities. The collage became the cover art. After the first album I took the design I made for the first album and cut it into plate and made a series of prints using various methods to get different results with each print. In this booklet I show both the front and back of the print with some of them helping revile the handcrafting in each one.
